Company Corner

Hammering Away Through January

These subzero temperatures never seem to slow down the crew at Vinyl Concepts. The company has been taking on new construction projects throughout the cold season such as the desired Deer Brook Development in Exeter. "I can't feel my fingers most of the time, but we're tough... I like to keep my guys busy through the winter because nobody wants to be out of work for the holidays" says President, Chris Sweet.

With renovation projects rolling in, Vinyl Concepts will continue to hammer away through the blustery winter months.

Project Spotlight

Harborview Condominiums Get a Facelift

Nestled in the heart of Greenwich Harbor, the luxurious Harborview Condominiums, gets a complete exterior makeover by Vinyl Concepts. Showcasing cedar impressions, one of the hottest new materials in the industry, the exterior takes on a completely new presence. Christian Sweet comments on the ascetic appeal of the product, "we love to use cedar impressions because it mimics that seaside weathered shingle look which is a staple trait of these oceanfront properties." The project took only two months with a limited yet diligent crew who seemed to enjoy the process. "Often times you might peek down from the ladder and find a smiling resident of the association offering a plate full of oatmeal cookies to our team," Chris reflects fondly. With the panoramic views of the bay and the endearing hospitality of the residents, the crew all agreed that working on the Harborview Condominiums was quite a rewarding experience. Association President, Eric Schold comments on his the finished product, "This renovation certainly brought a much needed cosmetic beauty to our property as well as an added value!" At the conclusion of the project, the residents showed their appreciation with a potluck celebration for the hard working crew.
